

Using a PC Windows 11 Working with Windows

In the previous lesson, Celine learned how to find and open files on her computer. In this lesson, Celine will learn how to use an application window including how to make a window larger or smaller, move a window, and more.

Provided by AT&T Connected Learning + Public Library Association

In today's example, Celine is using Microsoft Word and Excel on the Windows 11 operating system. Every time you open and use applications, files and folders, they are viewed inside a window. The window is your working area.

Sometimes, the window may be too big or too small. Celine can change the size of the window by using her mouse or touchpad to place the cursor on the edge of the window.

When she does this, her cursor will change into a double-headed arrow.

The right corner of the title bar includes buttons that help manage the window.

Clicking the maximize button, that looks like a square, will expand the window to fill the desktop.

Will you help Celine and click the maximize button?

Good job! The window now fills the desktop.

To make it smaller again, Celine will click the restore button. The restore button looks like a double rectangle. When Celine maximized this window, the restore button replaced the maximize button.

She then drags the mouse down to scroll down in the document.

When Celine needs to see other files or folders on the desktop, she can use the minimize button to move this window out of the way. The button looks like a dash and will collapse the window into the taskbar at the bottom of the screen.

Provided by AT&T Connected Learning + Public Library Association

The file is minimized and appears on the taskbar as an icon. Celine can get back to it at any time by clicking on this icon.
